

Switch to Digital & Close Deals Faster

The quick guide to boosting sales productivity

Get more done while getting more deals

We're not going to sugarcoat it

If your sales team is still handling contracts via paper, mountains of hours are being wasted printing, scanning, faxing and shipping. Add in the time spent waiting for customer responses, trying to track down signatures, and looking for paperwork that invariably ends up misplaced and you're heading straight for record-breaking, time-sucking territory.

But wait, there's more

Actually, there's less. That's because your bottom line is also taking some pretty hefty hits. If the aforementioned numbers are making you feel a tad numb, you'll be happy to know there's a better way to go. DocuSign automates the entire sales contract process, from sending to signing. And in between, you'll be able to accomplish things you never thought possible.

Close more deals faster

Eliminate slow-as-molasses paper-based processes with automation. It's a fast way to get those deals closing faster. This, in turn, greatly reduces time to revenue. How much? Just ask companies like Salesforce® and Comcast.

Salesforce reduced time to close deals from 2 days to:

30%

Comcast increased close rates

Boost productivity

Streamlined operations means less time spent doing those not so rewarding administrative chores. That translates to your sales team having an abundance of bandwidth to bring in more business. Like DuPont and CenturyLink, they'll start taking advantage of it in, well, no time. See for yourself.

Maximize operational efficiencies

As signatures are applied to documents throughout the sales cycle, they automatically trigger provisioning, billing and onboarding processes. You won't break a sweat – or break the bank on printing, mailing and overnight shipping.

“DocuSign not only helps our account executives close a great number of deals but accelerates the pace at which we’re able to operate. Additionally, it’s allowed our employees to simply work from wherever they are—be it from within Box, from Salesforce, from DocuSign or from a mobile device.”

“In the past, we did a lot of scanning of contracts and manual data entry back into Salesforce. We would lose data in that process and it also created a lot of extra manual steps that we had to do. That’s all been eliminated with DocuSign.”
