

Drybar

Drybar is a California-based chain of salons that provide “blowouts,” a hair styling service. In addition to 70+ locations throughout the United States and Canada, their growing product line is sold in their shops and at Sephora, Nordstrom, Ulta and Bloomingdale’s.

The Goal: A Scalable Contract Lifecycle Management Solution for a Growing Business

The new General Counsel wanted to get her house in order.

Since their founding in 2008, Drybar has experienced tremendous growth. With 71 stores of their own and a product line in several major department stores, they have a lot of channels and locations that require contract review and negotiations. The brand’s first in-house General Counsel came onboard in 2015 and immediately saw a need for a Contract Lifecycle Management (CLM) solution.

The Challenge: Moving from Shared Drives and Manual Processes to the Cloud

Drybar needed a thoughtful solution for accessing, maintaining and storing templates and contracts.

Drybar did not have a centralized resource that would maintain or track their templates and signed agreements that included event agreements, lease renewals, model releases, non-disclosure and manufacturing agreements. Everything was stored on shared drives, specific to departments. When anyone needed to know how many contracts Drybar had, they would have to go to the head of each department and collect everything manually. In addition, tracking lease end dates on their stores was done manually through a spreadsheet, resulting in missed deadlines.

Use Case

“SpringCM has enabled me to be extremely service-oriented with my team — at a low cost. I’m working faster and more collaboratively.”

The Solution: A Flexible Solution That Works from Anywhere

Integration with Salesforce was important to some users, but not others.

Drybar's General Counsel had used other CLM platforms prior to joining the company and she was familiar with SpringCM's reputation as a leader in innovation, effectiveness, and value. SpringCM checked all the boxes that Drybar wanted in a solution. While the competition provided purely contract management or purely case management solutions, SpringCM offered both. In addition, SpringCM offered flexibility in form templates and reporting tools, as well as integration with Salesforce. Since some in the company use Salesforce and others don't, the flexibility of viewing and working directly in Salesforce — or outside of Salesforce — was also key.

Mobile access was another deciding factor. With SpringCM, anyone can access any contract or document from anywhere in the world. According to Drybar's General Counsel, "It's actually easier for me to pull a document up from the SpringCM app than it is from my laptop. I can pull it up in two seconds from the app and easily forward it on."

The Result: Empowered Employees

Drybar Sales and HR have more control over their work and Legal can move on to other tasks.

SpringCM has enabled Drybar departments like Sales and HR to own their timelines during the negotiation and contract process. They no longer have to wait for Counsel to complete tasks — and Drybar's General Counsel has recovered two hours of her work day that she can dedicate to more strategic tasks. And adoption and feedback from Drybar employees has been positive. They didn't have to go through arduous training with SpringCM because the tool is designed to be easy to learn and use.
