Institutions are constantly asked to do more with less. Over the past few years, budgets have decreased by 66% while workloads have increased by 95%—and a significant part of that burden is agreements. From financial aid for students to hiring faculty and staff, agreements are foundational in higher education. Yet many institutions rely on manual, disconnected processes to get them done—wasting resources, increasing errors, and frustrating everyone involved. By eliminating paper and manual processes, DocuSign increases operational efficiency and improves the experience for students, staff, and alumni.

Create a seamless student experience
Offer a digital agreement process that allows students to fill out forms on the go, gives them visibility into the status of their requests, and reduces their wait time.

Achieve greater operational efficiency
Reduce what you spend on paper and storage; reallocate staff and faculty time to more mission-driven tasks; and streamline processes with workflows that make documents available to read and sign on virtually any device.

Increase security and compliance
Securely send and sign agreements in person, offline, or digitally. Proactively detect risks and deploy a modern system of agreement that creates audit trails, manages versions, improves clauses, collects signatures, and digitally stores documents.

Make an impact on the environment
Cut the amount of paper used, saving trees and reducing your institution's carbon footprint.
