

Reducing Paperwork at the Department of Education

The Department of Education (ED) is ahead of other agencies on digitization, but significant gaps remain. ED still ranks near the bottom of federal agencies on Forrester's Citizen Experience Index.¹

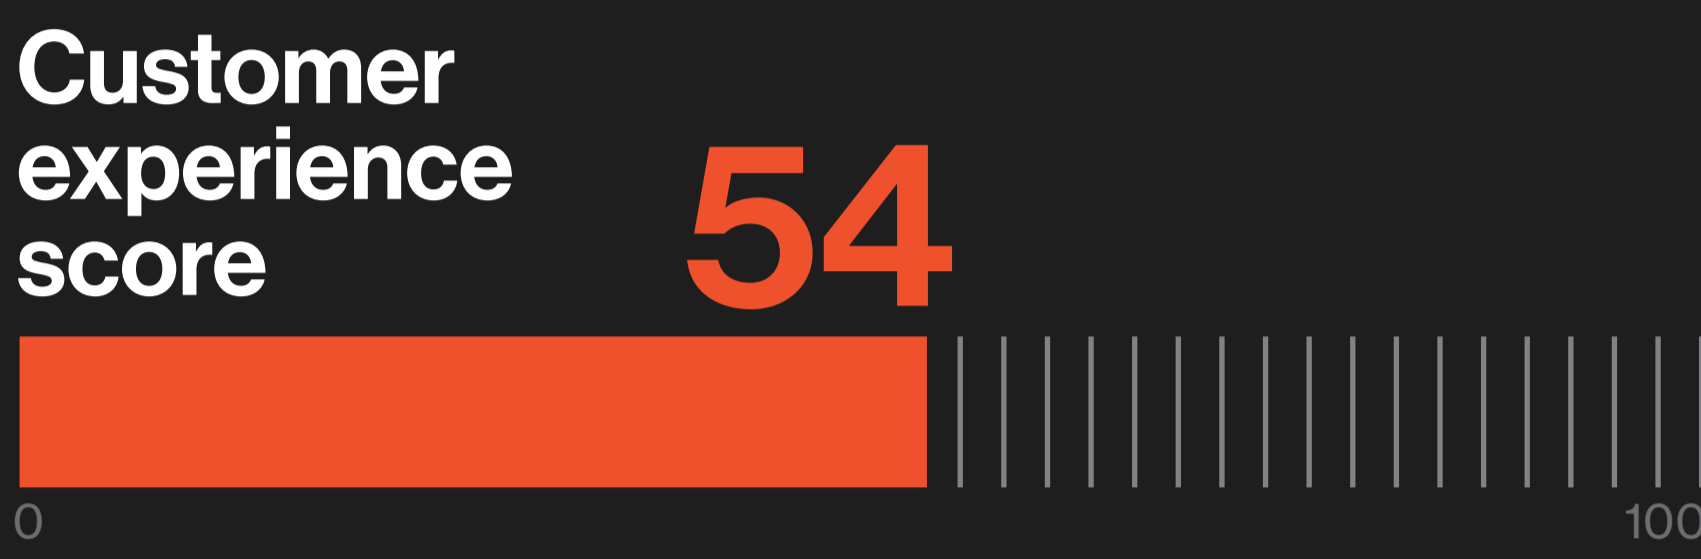

Paperwork is costing ED more than you think.

384M forms processed per year

ED's customer experience is also in need of improvement.

According to Forrester's 2018 CX Index:

#13 Customer experience ranking
Among all federal agencies

It's not just a good IDEA. It's the law.

The 21st Century IDEA

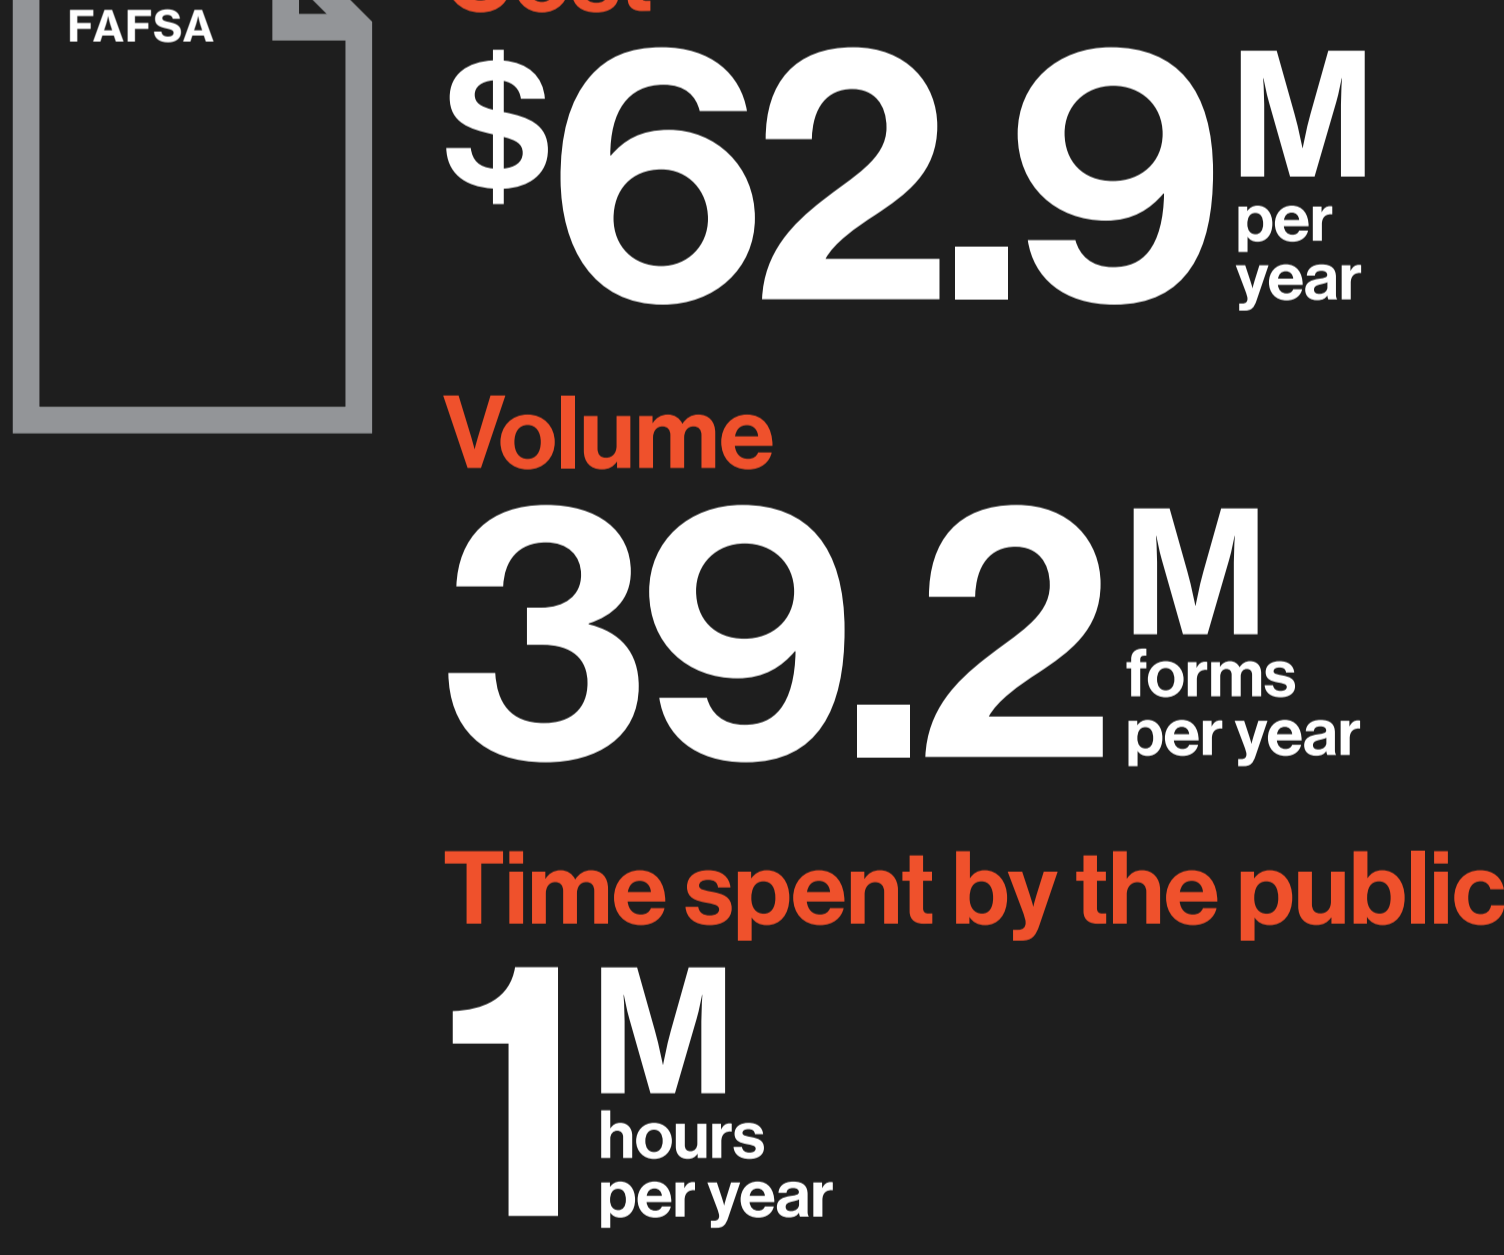

Integrated Digital Experience Act

Voted into law in December 2018, 21st Century IDEA greatly improves the public's digital interactions with the federal government. It establishes deadlines for federal agencies to provide modern, mobile, and accessible government websites, digital forms and services, and electronic signatures.

The time to act is now.

Start with your most costly form: the Free Application for Federal Student Aid.

Get measurable results.

DocuSign can help you comply with the law, improve your processes, and save you money.

- Value
$36 saved per document
- Efficiency
94% reduction in turn-around time
- Accuracy
84% fewer errors
- Security
FedRAMP authorized

Want to learn more?

We can help you modernize your entire system of agreement to reduce your agency's paperwork burden and quickly get into compliance with the 21st Century IDEA.

- docusign.com/IDEA
- federal@docusign.com
- 866.219.4318

Sources
 1 OIRA. (2018). Current Inventory Report. XML Database of paperwork burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act. Retrieved from <https://www.reginfo.gov/public/do/PRAXML> in October 2018
 2 DocuSign estimate